Academic All-American
Class of 1989

“By attending North Platte Community College, I received a great academic foundation. It gave me the advantage of smaller classes and individual instruction that larger colleges or universities can’t compete with. My NPCC experience was very instrumental in shaping my long term educational path and goals.”

“As the first homeschooled student to graduate from MPCC in North Platte, I will always be indebted to Mr. Babcock, Mrs. Ridenour, and Mrs. McGahan for seeing something in me worth cultivating. The rest of my instructors took a genuine interest in me while pushing me to excel. I’m proud to say that the education I received while I was there set an excellent foundation for the rest of my learning experiences. Whether working for a judge in Washington D.C., serving as an attorney, or teaching classes at Purdue University, the skills and education I received at MPCC have served me well.”

“The education that I received at North Platte Community College is the cornerstone of my business and finance knowledge and career. NPCC provided me not only with a basic understanding of business but a deeper knowledge of the fundamental principles of business. My experience at NPCC encouraged me to move on to obtain my Bachelor’s Degree in Business as well as some post-graduate work. The outstanding professors and teachers at NPCC were among the best that I encountered in my entire education. I believe that I learned more from Dr. Deeds, who still teaches accounting at NPCC, than I did from any other professor that I encountered in my college career. I’m proud to be a graduate of North Platte Community College.”

A Brief History of

North Platte Community College

North Platte’s College History

- The federal government transferred title to the former Post Office/Federal Building at Fifth and Jeffers to the Junior College District on July 3, 1964.
- North Platte Junior College first registered students for the fall term in 1965.
- The first building on Mid-Plains Voc-Tech campus was dedicated May 16, 1971.
- In 1972, the late Janet McDonald left a major portion of her estate to the district for the construction of an academic college building named for her family.
- First use of the partially completed McDonald-Belton building located south of the interstate was in December 1974. The building was dedicated on February 23, 1975.

Today

- Renamed Mid-Plains Community College-North Platte Campuses as North Platte Community College, a Division of Mid-Plains Community College.
 - Voc-Tech Campus is identified as North Platte Community College-North Campus.
 - McDonald-Belton Campus is identified as North Platte Community College-South Campus.
- The MPCC system works together through integrated student services, business systems, an area-wide academic/vocational division structure and collective marketing and recruitment efforts.
- By embracing new distance learning technology, the institution is now able to span its educational opportunities over the entire 180-mile north-south 18-county service area.

Friend-raising and Fund-raising

A 501 (c) (3) organization pledged to support North Platte Community College and its students through financial and philanthropic actions.

Who We Are ...

History

The 18-county Mid-Plains Community College Area was established in 1973 by the Nebraska Legislature to deliver the technical and academic transfer needs of its residents.

Separate campuses at McCook and North Platte resulted in each campus operating its own foundation.

In 2005, an executive committee under the leadership of Dr. Michael Chipps, President of Mid-Plains Community College, took action to form the North Platte Community College Foundation.

The Board of Directors is committed to building support for North Platte Community College students and programs.

Board of Directors

The Foundation is managed by a volunteer Board of Directors who believes in the college and its' mission.
